Illinois Families Deserve a Child Tax Credit

SB 3329 (Aquino) / HB 4917 (Evans)

Families are feeling the strain of rising costs, from groceries to rent, and more. Creating a $300 per child Child Tax Credit (CTC) is an immediate, meaningful way to directly support half of Illinois' kids.

A POLICY WITH VALUES

The 40+ organizations in the Illinois Cost of Living Refund Coalition identified four non-negotiable core values that must be present in any form of a statewide Child Tax Credit:

- REFUNDABILITY: The lowest income earners would benefit the most, and full refundability guarantees that those who are too poor to pay state income taxes still can benefit.
- PER-CHILD BENEFITS: A CTC would cover each eligible kid from 0 to 17. By establishing a broad-based credit for families at or below the median income, we support families who need it most, covering half of Illinois' children in every corner of the state, with Black and brown households representing 60% of all benefiting children.
- PHASING OUT BENEFITS: Phasing out the Child Tax Credit, as opposed to a strict eligibility cliff, prevents parents from getting stuck in gaps without coverage, or left worse off for taking a pay increase.
- ACCESSIBILITY: The program would be accessible for households who are often pushed out of other tax benefits, including households that file taxes with ITIN numbers, care for permanently disabled children, are unhoused or facing housing challenges.

IMPACT

If passed, a CTC would offer $300 for each child whose parent earns less than the median income, benefitting 1.4 million kids, which is half of all the children in the state.

A CTC would increase children's economic and educational outcomes, improve healthcare outcomes, and increase public safety — all critical to reducing strain on State resources.

The CTC's long-term effects are built on the foundation of immediate returns through increasing local economic activity. Federal data shows up to 80% of the CTC is spent immediately and locally to buy goods and services. Research shows that spending on a CTC results in a 2.5x multiplier for local spending. All told, for our $300 million proposal, that's $750 million in local stimulus, something main streets need across the state as we face more uncertain economic conditions.

A systematic review of cost benefit analyses conducted on the nation's CTC programs shows the long-term impact of a CTC on the State's bottom line: every $1 spent on a refundable credit would save Illinois taxpayers $10 in State costs.

ELIGIBILITY

To receive the full $300 per child credit, families would earn median income or less, meaning up to $75,000 for joint filers, or single parents making up to $50,000. Families earning more than these thresholds slowly phase out at a consistent, flat rate. The CTC is indexed to inflation to grow in out-years.

A $300 per-child credit for half of Illinois' children, based on the Core Values of the coalition, is a step in the right direction to help Illinois families put food on the table and meet basic needs.

It's time to make the Illinois tax code work for families, not work against them.
